<<THE CEREAL LOVER'S C>>

内容概要

Everybody loves cereal. It doesn't matter if you're young or old. You probably have a box (or two or three) in the cupboard right now. Well, it's not just for breakfast anymore. Start thinking of cereal as your special secret ingredient!

In The Cereal Lover's Cookbook, the great American staple comes out of the kitchen cabinet and goes into delicious recipes for everything from baked goods and snacks to salads, soups, and main dishes. There are more than fifty homestyle dishes to choose from, such as mustard-dill salmon fillets with a crispy corn flake crust, jam-filled muffins with a Grape Nuts[®] streusel topping, blueberry parfaits with layers of Fruit Loops[®], and even meatloaf made with Wheaties[®]. All of your favorite cereals are here—Cap'n Crunch[®], Cheerios[®], Kix[®], Special K, and more—adding crunch and pizzazz to recipes that are easy to make and hard to resist.

The Cereal Lover's Cookbook is packed with practical information, such as how to store cereal and the best ways to crush it, plus all kinds of fascinating cereal lore, not to mention dozens of gorgeous color photos. The creative recipes also offer a great way to get kids to try their hand at cooking and to get picky young eaters to start eating different foods. After all, anything with cereal in it has to be good. This cookbook proves it!

Lauren Chattman (Sag Harbor, NY) is the author of several cookbooks including Mom's Big Book of Baking (1-55832-194-2), Icebox Pies (1-55832-213-2), and Icebox Desserts (1-55832-271-X). She has sold over 20,000 books during appearances on QVC. Chattman's recipes have appeared in Food & Wine, Bon Appetit, the New York Times, Redbook, and Metropolitan Home, and she has developed over 500 recipes for The Cook's Illustrated Complete Guide series. She is a graduate of the Professional Baking and Pastry Program at Peter Kump's New York Cooking School.

Think out of the box and out of the bowl!

Cereal is fun, uncomplicated, and just plain good—like this book and the recipes in it. It shows you how to use cereal to turn everyday dishes into homestyle gourmet treats and put punch and crunch into great food.

Chattman is the author of several dessert cookbooks, including Icebox Pies and Mom's Big Book of Baking. Here she offers 50 recipes made with cereal for all courses of a meal, from breakfast to late-night snacks. Some—such as Oatmeal Pecan Waffles—sound a bit more enticing than others—Pappa al Pomodoro (bread soup) made with Wheaties. And some, such as Fruit Loop and Blueberry Parfaits, will certainly appeal more to children than to grownups. The recently published Kellogg's Cookbook includes 200 recipes for cereal lovers; Chattman's is recommended for larger libraries or collections where that volume has been especially popular. —Judith Sutton (Library Journal, June 15, 2006)
