<<东亚的艺术>>

内容概要

Magnificent architectural sites, painting, crafts and everyday objects, sculpture, dance, calligraphy and poetry contribute to the gloriously colorful mosaic of east and southeast Asia. This fascinating culture has expanded beyond its boundaries and has influenced western art. Starting with the stone objects of the Neolithic age, this book leads the reader through the centuries of Asian art up to the modern images of China. Sculptured tombs, porcelain, ink painting, the Forbidden City, furniture, lacquer and silk are all present in this work. Because of their special significance in the culture of eastern Asia, calligraphy and jade work are described in two separate chapters. The technique of textile manufacturing, to which a separate chapter is devoted, has an equally important influence on the whole of south-east Asia. Southeast Asia excites enthusiasm by its famous temples as well as by the longhouses of Indonesia and the traditional buildings on the lesser Sunda Islands. Particularly noteworthy are the performing arts, the wayang shadow plays, the ritual and court dances. Angkor, one of the wonders of the world tucked away in the jungle, reveals to us the impressive civilization of the Khmer, and in Pagan we are shown the largest temple site in the world. In Vietnam the strong Chinese influence nevertheless resulted in an original development with the imperial city of Hu. Thailand and Laos captivate us with their opulent palaces and temples. All the richness and variety of Japanese culture emerges in the architecture of the palaces, castles, temples, in the traditional methods of house building and in the principles of the Zen gardens. There is an emphasis on the examination of ceramics and painting as well as a demonstration of the significance of lacquer work, netsuke and theater masks. Sculptures, court art, samurai and folk art complete the picture. Finally, the colorful variety of Korean artistic creations is illustrated by early objects in bronze and gold, typical stoneware vessels, paintings and precious gowns.

The character on the front cover means "East," while the character on the back cover broadly signifies the word "Arts." With little variation characters that originate from Chinese, here in the typeface Li Shu, are also used in Korean and Japanese.
