章节摘录

Previewing Previewing means looking ahead and checking for information in advance. Before you read a book in detail, you can learn quite a bit about it by previewing. You can preview or examine specific parts of it first.

Here are steps you may follow when you begin to preview a textbook. Read the title of the book. A title can tell you a great deal about a book. Before you read, think about what the title means. Read the table of contents. The table of contents appears at the beginning of a book. It is a list of the names of the chapters and the pages on which they begin. Sometimes you also find subheadings given under some chapters. If the book is divided into parts, that information also appears in the table of contents. After you study the names of the chapters and subheadings, you will know what each section of the book is about and how the topics of the sections relate to each other and to the whole book. Read the preface. The preface is a brief essay in which the author gives reasons for writing the book. It comes before the table of contents. From the preface you will learn for whom the book is written, the aims and the topics of the book and the best ways to use the book. Read briefly the index, glossary, appendix, bibliography and other special supplements. These usually appear at the back of a book. An index is an alphabetical list that tells the reader where particular topics, subjects and names of people, places or events, etc. are referred to in a book. A glossary gives definitions to a list of difficult words or terms that appear in a book. An appendix adds to a book extra information (charts, graphs, documents, facts, etc.) that is helpful to the understanding of the book.
