<<2007中国道路运输发展报告>>

内容概要

This report is a governmental channel to introduce China's road transportation development in 2007. The whole document is divided into 3 sections composed by 10 chapters in term of three aspects which are national economy and comprehensive transportation, industrial administration and recent hotspot. This report covers such content as passenger transport, freight transport, motor vehicle maintenance, driver training as well as international road transport. For one thing by means of interpretation of essential laws, regulations and rules, the report expands the direction and trend of transportation policy concerned. For another, through enunciation of authoritative viewpoints, the report tries to make more people understand the government. All of above reveals the government's effort to make to macro administration better.
