章节摘录

When you are with good friends you feel good about yourself, and you are glad to have them around. A friend is someone who you like, respect and trust, and who likes, respects and trusts you. A friend is a person who doesn't always understand you, but accepts and likes you as you are. A friend is a person who allows you the space to change, grow, make decisions, and even make mistakes. A friend is someone who listens to you and shares with you, both the good times and the bad times. A friend is someone who respects your need and your secret so you can tell them anything. A friend is someone who lets you freely express your feelings and emotions without judging, teasing, or criticizing. A friend is someone who gives you good advice when you want and ask for it, assists you in taking action that will help you feel better, and works with you in difficult situations to figure out what to do next. A friend is someone who accepts your self-defined limitations and helps you to remove them. A friend is someone who lets you help them when they need it. A friend is someone who you want to be with, but you aren't obsessed about being with. A friend is someone who doesn't ever take advantage of you. A good friend or supporter may or may not be your age or the same sex as you. He or she may not come from the same educational, cultural, or religious background. He or she may not share interests that are similar to yours. And friendships also have different depths: some are closer to the heart, some more superficial, but they're all useful and good.
