<<在生命的最后说谢谢>>

内容概要

If you were someone with an incurable disease that would soon cut your life short, how would you spend your precious remaining days in this world? If you were to have a sick child who needed full-time care and might leave you forever at any time, what would you do? Whatever choice you were to make, people would likely be compassionate and understanding. Most people dying from a degenerative disease prefer to spend their last days peacefully. But a father with his sick son took the time to travel around China to say thanks to everyone who had helped them.
