The Royal Readers were edited and published by the famous British publisher and used in schools until well into the 20th century. They are edited as six books in the Royal School Series. Students progressed from the very easy lessons to classic readers.

The First Book, beginning with similarly easy lessons, consisted of rhymes and simple short stories with plenty of illustrations for young learners. Children learned letters and easy reading. The first part of this book focuses exclusively on monosyllabic words and the second part introduces two syllable words.

In the Second Book there are short selections of poetry and prose designed to encourage interest in reading. Each story is followed by a lesson on pronunciation, simple definitions of new words and questions on its content.

The Third Book is very similar though slightly more advanced and including more writing exercises.

The Fourth Book includes phonetic exercises, model compositions and dictation exercises, as well as outlines of British History from Roman Period as far as 1400 A. D.

The Fifth Book features sections on health of the body, plants and their uses, as well as quotes and stories of great men.

Book Six, the final book in the series, contains word lessons and passages with sections on great inventions, classification of animals, useful knowledge, punctuation and physical geography, as well as the British Constitution.

章节摘录

版权页：插图： USEFUL KNOWLEDGE THE SEASONS INTO how many seasons is the year divided? Four: Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter. WINTER.-Which is the coldest season? Winter. Is it winter all over the Earth at the same time? No; when it is winter in the northern half of the Earth, it is summer in the southern half; and when it is summer in the north, it is winter in the south. When is it winter in either half of the Earth? When that half is least directly under the sun's rays. What effect has this on the length of the days? The days are shortest in winter, and the nights longest. The shortest day is the middle of winter. What kind of weather have we in winter? Very cold, with frost and snow. What is snow? Water frozen as it falls from the clouds. What is it when the drops are frozen into little balls? Hail. Of what use is snow? It covers the earth, and guards the seeds and young plants from the frost. Of what use is frost? It kills many insects that injure plants; and it crumbles the clods and makes them fit to receive the seed. What is frozen water? Ice. How do we play on the ice? We skate and slide. How do we play with the snow? We build snow-houses, and throw snow-balls. Where do the birds go in winter? Many of them go to warmer countries-as the swallow, the cuckoo, and the nightingale. What do those that remain do? They come near our houses, and become very tame. How are the birds fed on Christmas-day in some countries? A sheaf of corn is tied on a pole, and put up for them to eat.

This set of English readers published in the beginning of 20th century was ever popularly used in the western schools. It has been constructed with a view to induce children to take a real interest in what they read, and to make them delight to exercise their power of reading. Great use has therefore been made of the objects of Natural History, and of the incidents and common things of daily life, by which children are most likely to be attracted. By being made to frame each answer in the form of a sentence, the child thus unconsciously produce a little composition exercise. Furthermore, exercises of spelling, pronunciation attached to the text are also of great help for children to speak Standard English. Good reading is more readily acquired by practice than by precept. The more children read, they will read the more fluently, intelligently, and gracefully.
