<<大国的责任>>

内容概要

This book is a most timely one that not only systematically introduces China's current international responsibilities, but also responds to the international public opinions arguing on whether China is a responsible power. Today, the mainstream of public opinions in Western powers seldom labels the emergence of China as a "threat", but neither do it regards China as a "partner". The focus of the debate is on whether China is "responsible". Under the powerful monopoly of Western opinions, the world can hear little of China's voice. This book aims at demonstrating the views of China's top scholars on the issue of international responsibilities in order to add a Chinese perspective to this hot topic in international politics, introducing in details China's achievements in shouldering international responsibilities in terms of maintaining world peace and promoting world development, showing the image of a responsible power, and for the international readers who are concerned about the emergence of China and China-Western relations, arousing their interests in the voice from China so as to eliminate misunderstandings. At the same time, this book also offers an in-depth analysis of the problems and challenges faced by China while its taking up international responsibilities. The publication of this book will help to break the monopoly of Western media and academia in public opinion and discourse on relevant issues so as to create a more favorable external environment for China's diplomacy.

章节摘录

版权页：插图：Ntegration into the international community as well as the establishment of diplomatic relations with a large number of countries. China's leadership gradually realized that war and revolution are not the permanent themes of the times. In the 1980s, they drew the conclusion that peace and development are the two major themes in the current world according to the new changes of the world situation. In the last more than 30 years, closely around these themes of the times, China has made continuous efforts to promote the world peace and development. In the new period, China raises its view on the new concept of the times for not only the domestic affairs but also the whole world for the first time. It mainly includes five aspects—the view of profound changes, harmonious world, common development, shared responsibility and active participation. 16 The world today is undergoing major development, major changes and major rebalancing and China believes that the striving for peace and cooperation, and the promotion of development are irresistible historical trends and that the international community should make efforts in building a harmonious world of enduring peace and common prosperity. 17 The interests of countries are inter-linked and countries are sharing a common destiny, so they must build up the modern thinking of promoting common development of countries and focus more upon exchange and cooperation, mutual learning, mutual benefits, win-win results and common development. China is a responsible member of the world community, as it always actively participates in the international cooperation with other countries against global challenges and threats out of the consideration of human existence and development.
