章节摘录

版权页：After sealing the tally to save Zhao State, Wei Wuji, Lord of Xinling, feared that his elder brother, the King of Wei State, would look into his crime, so he hid himself and stayed in Zhao State. He heard that the reverend Mr. Mao and Mr. Xue were very capable, and sent his men to invite them to his place, but they two refused. He inquired about the two men and got news that Mr. Mao hid himself among the gamblers, and Mr. Xue hid in an alcohol shop. So he went to look for them and at last he got to know them. Lord Pingyuan was told the news and he commented, "I have heard before that Lord Xinling's behaviour is unparalleled in the world, but now I consider that his behaviour is stupid enough, and he has all his goods in the window." Lord Xinling said, "Now that Lord Pingyuan looks down upon and sneers at me, I think it is time for me to leave." Lord Pingyuan knew that he had said wrong words, so he apologized to Lord Xinling, and Lord Xinling had a greater reputation. At that time, the King of Qin State dispatched troops to attack Wei State, so the King of Wei State sent a messenger to invite Lord Xinling to return. But Lord Xinling was afraid that the King of Wei State would look into his crime of stealing the tally, so he refused to return and warned his understrappers, "Those who report to me the request of an interview for the messenger of Wei State, will be killed right away."
