<<深圳市地图-2009版-英中对照>>

内容概要

Located in the south of Guangdong Province and with a coastline of 230kilometers, Shenzhen is a beautiful coastal city bordering on Hong Kong and Macau. Shenzhen enjoys the pleasant subtropical oceanic climate with abundant rain and full sunshine, the annual average temperature is 22.3℃, the recorded highest temperature is 38.7℃ and the recorded lowest temperature is 0.2℃. There are flowers and green lawns all the year round. Only in January of 1979 was Shenzhen given the status of a city, and only in August of 1980 did Shenzhen become Special Economic Zone. It is a young city, and now exercises jurisdiction over 6 districts at county level, namely: Luohu, Futian, Nanshan and Yantian within the SEZ, and Bao'an, Longgang, outside the Zone. The total area is 1952.84 square kilometers, of which the SEZ area is 327.5 square kilometers. In the end of 2008, the registered residents were 2.2807 million, and the permanent population was over 8.7683 million. Shenzhen is a city of migrants and a forthcoming city in reform and opening. Relying on the advanced cultural and geographic conditions, it radiates a kind of stunning charm in every field. With the rapid economic progress, Shenzhen now holds the leading position among big and medium-sized cities in China, which creates an unusual miracle in the world's industrialization and modernization history. Shenzhen now prevails over other cities in the fields of logistics, finance, hi-tech industry and tourism. The more important is that it holds the concept of "open, equal and human-oriented" and has the multi-culture advantage, compared with other cities. Shenzhen's development not only rapidly changes the city's look, but also takes a guiding example for other cities' reform, opening and economic development, and makes a great contribution to the Hong Kong's and Macau's smooth return to the motherland and their stable development. Shenzhen is also a beautiful city. Strolling along large streets and small lanes around Shenzhen, you will at any moment enjoy the warm of green leaves and the romance of flowers; staying by the seashore, you will feel the bosom of sea and the carefulness of waves. With the Shenzhen Spirit of "Exploitation and innovation, honesty and lawabidance, pragmatism and efficiency, unity and dedication", Shenzhen erects the surprising "Shenzhen benefit" and "Shenzhen speed", thus constructing an old-time border town into a modern international metropolis. Shenzhen, "Model of the times", shows all its rich fruits in reform and opening, while it is walking forward to the resplendence step by step.
