章节摘录

Some people have very good memories. They can easily learn quite long poems by hearts. But other people can only remember things when they have said them over and over. It is well-known that Charles Dickens was the famous English author. He said that he could walk along any long street in London and then tell you the name of every shop he had passed. * Many great men of the world have had excellent memories. A good memory is a great help in learning a language. Each person learns mother tongue by remembering what he hears when he is a small child. Some children live in foreign countries with their parents. They seem to learn two languages almost as easily as one. In schools it is not easy to learn a second language because there is no time for it, and they are busy with other subjects as well. The human mind is rather like a camera, but it takes photographs not only of what we see but of what we feel, hear, smell and taste. When we take a real photograph with a camera, there is a lot of work to do before taking the photograph to show to our friends. In the same way there is much work to be done before we can make a picture which remains forever in the mind. Memory is just like diary that we all take down with us.
