章节摘录

Hey !

Friend !

You Are Still Alive !

There is an episode of young Bismarck the great man in Germany. One day , when Bismarck and his friend went hunting , they came to a rapid stream in the valley. There was a log bridge but it looked very old and dangerous. Bismarck gave up on crossing the bridge and looked for another way. But his foolish friend decided to go on that bridge and fell into the water. The friend shouted and cried for help in the deep water. Then Bismarck didn't try to help him and even aimed at him with his pistol. " I couldn't see you drowning to death , SO I would rather kill you with my pistol !

" After hearing what Bismarck said , the drowning and struggling friend was very angry and tried to collect himself , saying , " I will see you , later. " He tried harder and did his best and got out of the water. And he asked Bismarck to fight , because he tried to kill him. Then , Bismarck smiled and said gently. " Hey !

My friend !

Look on the bright side !

You're alive now. If I jumped into the water to save you , we both would have drowned. Or if I did SO , you wouldn't try your very best. " Finally the friend realized his foolishness and said to a wise Bismarck , " Thank you my friend. When you aimed your pistol at me , I was really angry So I could get out of the water to fight you. Infact , you helped me come out of the water. At first , I thought that you were foolish not to go on that log bridge. but I was the fool. " Then two of them walked side by side.
