章节摘录

版权页：插图： But he took neither of these paths. In 1926, towards the end of his life, he made an earth-shaking decision: he would leave his entire estate in Shanghai. His will stipulated that his fortune be used for the following: a small amount would be left to individuals; cash would be given to charities that took care of the blind, the poor, children with nowhere else to turn; a large sum was donated to Chinese Hospital so that they could treat the poor for free; another hospital received a smaller amount in order to help the poor of other nations; and to re-establish the school affiliated with Holy Trinity Church. Remaining funds were to be put in The Lester Trust that would support organizations that looked after the poor, the sick, and the young. Organizations that the foundation would support included those dedicated to education, medicine, charity, children, the poor, and the sick. Lester's estate endowed the Henry Lester Institute of Medical Research and the Henry Lester Institute of Technical Education, which trained nearly a thousand students and was known far and wide. Lester loved China and Shanghai. He wrote a heartfelt note in his will: "For almost 60 years I have made my home in Shanghai, China. It is true now and will always be true; long ago, I decided to make China my home."
