章节摘录

版权页：插图： On September 4th 1922, Sun held the first meeting to study how to reorganize Kuomintang in China. On November 15th, Sun called in 59 Kuomintang representatives to discuss the amended plan of reforming Kuomintang. On January 1st 1923, Sun Yat-Sen issued 'Declaration of Chinese Kuomintang'. On January 2nd, Sun organized a general meeting of reforming Kuomintang and proclaimed the 'General Chapter of Kuomintang'. In late March, as the Prime Minister, Sun made the appointments of department heads of Kuomintang and members of military committee, etc. On January 17th, Yue Fei came to Shanghai and discussed with Sun about issues including the cooperation between Kuomintang and CPC, reorganizing Kuomintang, setting up armies, Russia and Comintern providing aids for Chinese revolution, etc. On 26th, both parties signed the Declaration of Sun Wen and Yue Fei, thus Sun established the union with Soviet Russia. In January that year, Comintern also passed the resolution of cooperation between Kuomintang and CPC. Meanwhile Sun organized two forces to suppress Chen Jiongming. On January 16th, Chen was driven out of Guangzhou. On February 15th, Sun returned to Guangzhou and set up revolutionary government for the third time. In August Sun sent a group to Soviet Russia to talk about aids. As required by Sun, Soviet government assigned a political and military consultant to stay in Guangzhou permanently to give instructions to Sun to organize revolutionary activities. On January 20th 1924, Sun-Yat-Sen presided the first National Congress of Kuomintang and completed the reorganization of Kuomintang and cooperation with CPC in terms of organizational forms. In fact, this meeting symbolized the establishment of the first cooperation between Kuomintang and CPC. After the congress, Sun established executive departments in Beijing, Shanghai and Hankou. He also set up the Nationalist Party of China Army Officer Academy, i. e. Whampoa Military Academy. Between January 27th 1924 to August 24th, he made a series of speeches on the Three Principles of the People. However, his reorganization of Kuomintang and cooperation with CPC were opposed by many party members. Most people in the party had doubts and worries with his policies. But Sun believed that Kuomintang needed fresh blood to revive and set himself against those right-wing members. When some opponents threatened him that they would quit Kuomintang, Sun immediately expelled them.
