What is the professor' S opinion of the motor theory of thinking? Most of the evidence he has collected contradicts it. It explains adult behavior better than it explains child behavior. It is the most valid theory of thinking at the present time. It cannot be completely proved or disproved.

PRACTICE SET 3 SCRIPT AND ANSWERS

Track 5 Listening Script Narrator Listen to part of a psychology lecture.

The professor is discussing behaviorism. Professor Now, many people consider John Watson to be the founder of behaviorism. And like other behaviorists, he believed that psychologists should study only the behaviors they can observe and measure. They're not interested in mental processes. While a person could describe his thoughts, no one else can see or hear them to verify the accuracy of his report. But one thing you can observe is muscular habits. What Watson did was to observe muscular habits because he viewed them as a manifestation of thinking. One kind of habit that he studied are laryngeal habits. Watson thought laryngeal habits...you know, from the larynx, in other words, related to the voice box...he thought those habits were an expression of thinking. He argued that for very young children, thinking is really talking out loud to oneself because they talk out loud even if they're not trying to communicate with someone in particular. As the individual matures, that overt talking to oneself becomes covert talking to oneself, but thinking still shows up as a laryngeal habit. One of the bits of evidence that supports this is that when people are trying to solve a problem, they, um, typically have increased muscular activity in the throat region. That is, if you put electrodes on the throat and measure muscle potential-muscle activity-you discover that when people are thinking, like if they're diligently trying to solve a problem, that there is muscular activity in the throat region.
