章节摘录

Grammar practice can also be facilitated by the game “ sentence auctions ” Holding “ sentence auctions is a fun way to help students review what they have learnt . It is particularly suitable when the rules of sentence construction are practiced . Basically , students are divided into groups of four to five and are given some “ money ” with which to bid on various sentences provided by the teacher . These sentences are either correct or incorrect . . The group which “ buys ” the most correct sentences wins the game . Before the game , the teacher should explain the rules of the game clearly enough that every student knows how to play . For example , the rules may be stated like these : “ In this game , you will be given many sentences . Some are correct while others are incorrect . Each group will have 5 , 000 yuan to spend and you should try to buy as many correct sentences as possible . Bids begin at 200 yuan and increase by 100 yuan each bid . The sentence will be sold to the highest bidder . Understand? ” If students do not understand the rules , the teacher can explain in Chinese or show an example to explain how an auction goes . To make the game more interesting , the teacher can use an “ auction hammer ” . When showing the example , he / she can hold the hammer , saying : “ 400 yuan going once ” 400 yuan going twice , 400 yuan sold to group X ! ” And then the hammer falls to indicate the successful bid . In this game , students have to be very careful to decide which sentences they would like to buy . Thus , they may get to know how to produce correct sentences by themselves . Once the game has finished , the teacher needs to instruct students to go through all the sentences saying whether it is correct or incorrect and explaining the reasons . And then optionally , students can be asked to correct the wrong sentences.
