章节摘录

This brings me to the third point. The Church that has , through her life and power , started various changes in China and has in the past been able to change her environment by her impact upon China , now shows an inability to adapt herself to her rapidly changing environment. The question is whether or not the Church is flexible and enough alive to meet the social needs of China. No one can doubt that in order to meet this growingly complex social situation in China , the Church must have a Christian social consciousness and passion and a thorough and definite social program upon which to proceed to meet social needs. But has the Church these things? Then again the Church must adapt her-self to the changed intellectual environment. She used to be the advocate of truth , learning , education , and enlightenment and the leader in intellectual life. Has she now lost that place? Is she losing this place of importance , of intellectual leadership? In our ears rings the cry for science , like the crying of a child in the dark for light. In our ears too rings the demand that science and experience go hand in hand. But the Church today is frankly rigid and dogmatic in thought , still presenting herself in cloaks of the 4th and 16th centuries. She does not lay sufficient emphasis upon life. Instead of attempting to allow interpretations of experience to agree with life , she has more and more turned to the mediaeval recipe of placing life upon the Procrustean bed of worn out theories and interpretations.

Thoughtful people fear that the Church is defending certain ancient metaphysical concepts instead of Christ , enthroning prejudices instead of God , worshipping the Bible , instead of the Saviour , emphasizing traditions instead of life , preaching orthodoxy instead of the gospel , perpetuating accretions instead of the essence of Christianity , and exhibiting the spirit of strife , conflict and division instead of the spirit of love sympathy , and brotherhood in one God the Father and one Saviour Jesus Christ. ....
