章节摘录

I don't think you're honest yourself. Let's get rid of the garbage ourselves. The reason for interrupting the noun phrase with postmodification is twofold, on the one hand, we manage to achieve the sentence balance by moving a weighty item to the final position — end-weight~ on the other, we manage to achieve prominence for that postponed item by moving it into the usual scope of focus — end-focus. Although discontinuity mainly occurs with the noun phrase which contains postmodification, there are a few minor types of discontinuity which are by no means uncommon. One of them is closely related to extraposition and passive voice: He is believed to have made up his mind to buy the house. The president is reported to have been missing for three days. Another type of discontinuity is found with comparative constructions: Joe spent far less time on the work than expected. People in small towns are more friendly to strangers than those in big cities. And a third type often occurs with constructions associated with the meaning of comparison, too, to, enough, to, so as to that and such as to that.. She was too shocked at the sight of murder to explain to the police. Do you think you have enough money in your pocket to pay for your dinner ?
