章节摘录

How much shall we pay for this coverage? The rate varies according to the fragility of the goods. Here is a rate list. Thank you. So, shall we mention specifically in the insurance policy that the Risk of Breakage is included? Yes, we need to. Breakage Risk is an additional risk and should be covered separately. OK. Am I right in understanding that in this case, any breakage of our shipment will be compensated by the underwriters?

Im afraid not. Underwriters usually regard the breakage as inherent vice of, say, porcelain. That means porcelain itself is liable to be broken, and even with careful handling, breakage can hardly be avoided. So underwriters wont bear the responsibility to pay for breakage only if the damage exceeds the scope of franchise. Franchise? Whats for? Its like getting free of liability to compensate. Im not sure about the exact franchise rate for porcelain. Take 5% as an example, the insurance company wont compensate for any breakage if less than 5% of the entire shipment is found broken. [ think ! got your points. If it happens, buyers have to bear the loss then.
