内容概要

This book is a short guide of architecture in Shanghai. The guide illustrates the architectural and urban landscape solely as an instant photograph and I have tried to refrain from including personal or general comments or opinions. As an architectural guide it contains illustrations of buildings , including photographs , drawings and indications of the location of buildings in the city. Furthermore , texts and photographs are explicative and unbiased in their content and significance. The guide is divided into six itineraries and each itinerary is divided into several sections , one for each building. Each section contains photographs , an exterior view as well as others to illustrate particular details or the interior view , a brief explanation , often a drawing and always the address in both English and Chinese. Each itinerary has a city map showing the location of the buildings illustrated.

作者简介

Luigi Novelli is an architect , graduated from the University of Rome No.1 "La Sapienza" in 1987. Since 1985 he has engaged in new design , redevelopment , restorations , maintenance work and the supervision of construction. He worked mainly in Rome and central Italy (Abruzzo , Sardinia and Naples) . During the 1990s , he also worked in Albania. He went to Shanghai for the first time in 1992. Since 1997 he has worked in Shanghai (and Beijing) and written articles about Shanghai architecture for a number of Italian architectural magazines. In 1999 he published the book : SHANGHAI ARCHITECTURE BETWEEN CHINA AND THE WEST (Dedalo Publishing House , Rome) . In 2001 he published the book : SHANGHAI ARCHITECTURE GUIDE 100 YEARS/100 BUILDINGS (Baijia Publishing House , Shanghai) . In 2002 , two other guides were published creating a series on Shanghai architecture.
